Handcrafted using woven cane, sometimes referred to as wicker or rattan, our cane coffins hold an off-white appearance and are skilfully finished by hand using traditional basket making techniques. The rattan used for our coffins is harvested from the forests of South East Asia where rattan clings and grows up the existing forest trees like a vine. Rattan has been known to grow as much as six meters in a year making it a great renewable material.

Seagrass

Curved or Traditional

£850.00

Our Seagrass Coffins are a beautiful compliment, rustic and natural with subtle green and blue tones. They are woven by hand using yarns of twisted seagrass and finished with cane, top and bottom. The seagrass material used for our coffins is grown in coastal paddy fields and flooded with seawater throughout the year. The fields are carefully managed to promote a continued cycle of growth and renewability.

Willow

Our Willow Coffins have a slightly pink and golden look, they are hand-worked by traditional basket weavers using age-old methods that have changed very little in over 2000 years. Willow is by far the ultimate in environmental recycling, willow is grown in rows of bushes and once harvested can regenerate back to the same height within a year. Willow has been known to grow up to 3 metres tall annually and has the ability to degrade much more quickly than conventional hardwood.
